price of refined sugars, a firmer market for sterling exchange, the unfavorable railway statements for August, made public to-day, and fears that the Populist demonstration in this city to-morrow evening may have some effect upon speculative sentiment, were the ostensible reasons for a reactionary movement in the stock market to-day. As a matter of fact, speculative conditions warranted a setback and the circumstances mentioned simply precipitated it. It has been known for some time that railway traffic returns for August would not compare favorably with those of last year, because of the depressed condition of general business and the cutting of rates, particularly on grain, by the Granger trunk lines. A lower market for refined sugars has been foreshadowed for nearly a week, and so has the reaction that 1107% has taken place in the foreign exchange market. These considerations, however, were outwelghed last week by various favorable developments that occurred from day to day, and which were doubtless taken advantage of at the time by speculative holders of stocks to secure a part of their profits. The effect of those operations was felt to-day, and at the same time professional traders of bearish inclinations were encouraged 5 TR...... 40% 42 by the plainly foreseen events of the day to at-tack the prices of a number of the more active stocks. Unusually heavy trading in St. Paul was the most conspicuous feature of the market. That stock supplied nearly half of the total transactions, which, it is to be noted, showed a falling off as compared with recent days, when the tendency of prices has been toward a higher level. The room did not like the character of some of the speculative buying of St. Paul, regarding it as weak and likely to impair temporarily a substantial market for the stock should any untoward development occur. For this reason traders were more inclined to sell than to buy stocks, particularly in view of the showing made by the company's statement for August, C., B. and Quincy was sold in expectation of an August statement showing material decline in net earnings. The market for Sugar Refining was affected not only by the reduction in the price of refined sugars, but by reports from Philadelphia, which were not credited in the trade here that New Orleans interests have bought the new refinery at Camden, N. J., for the purpose of com-It appears that the importance of that refinery is estimated to be only about 1,700 barrels per day. tioned and Manhattan Railway, Louisville and Nashville, and Rock Island was exceedingly limited, a condition that indicates plainly that the majority of people now trading in stocks may also fairly be inferred that a moderate decline is not likely to bring out many stocks. Receipts of specie from Europe to-day were $2,000,000, all of which was deposited in the Sub-Treasury in exchange for legal tender notes. According to the Custom House returns, to-day's receipts bring the total imports from Europe since the present movement began up to $33,337,000. Besides, $1,000,000 has been received at Boston, over $2,000,000 at San Francisco, and various smaller amounts have been received here from Canada making the total fully $37,000,000 Canada, making the total fully $37,000,000. Currency transfers by the Sub-Treasury to-day were $220,000, of which $100,000 was to New Orleans. Sight sterling, for reasons noted further on in this column, has now advanced to figures that, if maintained, would seem likely to prevent further imports of gold. The closing was steady at a slight recovery in most cases from the lowest prices.
